

The people of Northern California were used to living with the threat of wildfires. But nothing could have prepared them for the devastating 2018 fire season – the deadliest in 100 years, and the most destructive in history.

Eleven-year-old Josh leaves his New Jersey home for the rural northern California town where his cousins live. While there, he and his cousin find themselves in the path of a fast-moving firestorm – a super-heated monster that will soon lay waste to millions of acres of wilderness – and, possibly, their town.
